SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24. 1737.

N^o. 702.

Bologna, Aug. 26. O. S.

HERE are Letters from Tuscany which say, that the Inhabitants of Sienna have not yet taken the Oath of Fidelity to the new Grand Duke; and that their Objection to it arises from their View to a future Alteration in the Form of Government.

As the Inhabitants of Sienna heretofore composed a Republick, which was afterwards subjected to the Authority of the Florentines, we are assured that they want the new Great Duke, to let them establish a Form of Regency which may be subject only to his Authority, and entirely independent on the City of Florence.

Florence, Aug. 27. O. S. The Prince de Craon, and the Marquis de Richemont, having had several Conferences with the Electress Dowager, and an Express arriving 3 Days ago with fresh Instructions to those Ministers, her Most Serene Electoral Highness determined Yesterday to take the Reins of Government into her own Hands, during the Absence of the Great Duke our Sovereign, to the inexpressible Joy of all the Inhabitants of this City. As to the Difficulties that hindered the Electress from taking that Burden upon her hitherto, the Principal was, That she was not willing to enter into the Views of the Great Duke, with Regard to the Allodial Estates of the Family of the Medicis, which her Highness was for only disposing of by a Family-Convention, upon the Footing of that which was made some Years ago, in Favour of the King of the Two Sicilies. On the contrary, the Great Duke, far from subjecting himself to any Convention, insisted, as has been formerly said, that those Estates belonged to him without any Treaty. But at length a Medium has been found out, which removes all Difficulties on both Sides. The Electress is from this Instant to give up all the Allodial Estates to the Great Duke, in Condition that this Prince will appropriate them, to the Great Dukes his Predecessors always promis'd they would do, towards paying off the Debts of the Mounts of Piety (a Sort of Charitable Corporations for lending Money on Pledges) of this City, and of others in the Country, which amount to immense Sums. As to the Moveable Estate, her Electoral Highness is to have the Use thereof for her Life, and the Pension she enjoy'd hitherto is to be considerably augmented. The Convention which has been concerted for that Purpose, is not to be made publick, till it has been signed by the Emperor and by the King of France, who have undertaken to guarantee it.

Venna, Sept. 3. O. S. This Week the Court received an Express from the Count d'Ostein, the Emperor's Second Ambassador at Nimirow, whose Dispatches are not made publick, but we are assured they are not favourable; and that the Ambassadors of the Porte, notwithstanding all the Assurances they gave of the Grand Seigneur's Pacifick Dispositions, received the Proposal which was made to them of the Possiditis, with as much Disdain as if it had been proposed to them to change their Alcoran for our Gospel. Since the Arrival of the above-mention'd Express, a Messenger has been sent to Petersburg, with the Remarks of this Court on the Preliminary Proposals of the Turkish Ministers; and as the Remarks of Russia are also to be expected, it is believed that the Congress at Nimirow will be spun out to a great Length, unless the Porte give another plain Explanation than they have done yet; which there is no Reason to hope for this Year.

Copenhagen, Sept. 2. O. S. The Manufactures which the King has established in this Country, answer as well as could possibly be expected. The Workmen that were sent for from Holland, make as good Woollen Cloth as the Manufacture of Leyden, and as good Stockings as one would desire. Several thousand Inhabitants of this Kingdom, who had almost lost the Use of their Limbs for Want of Work to exercise them, are now employed in Spinning of Flax; and they make as good and as fine Linnen Cloth, as any other Foreign Country does; which is whiten'd after the German Manner, by the Direction of Master Workmen sent for into the Kingdom for that Purpose. Mean Time, as all the new Establishments require a great Stock, and are commonly attended with Difficulties, the King, for their Encouragement and Support, caused an Edict to be published the 15th ult. O. S. by virtue whereof all that receive Pensions or Salaries from the Court, either Civil or Military, are obliged to contribute 10 per Cent. per Ann. out of their Pay or Salary, for the better Support of the Manufactures: Provided nevertheless, That in a Year and Half those Manufactures shall restore to each Person the Value of the Money they have paid in to the same, either in Woollen Cloth, Woollen Stuffs, or Silks, Stockings, or other Things manufactur'd in this Country, according to every one's Fancy or Choice. And all his Majesty's other Subjects, who are vested with any Dignity or Character, tho' they have no Pension, are to be obliged in like Manner to advance something for the Support of the Manufactures, in Proportion to their Substance, and on the Conditions just now mentioned.

Gottingen, Sept. 7. O. S. There has been an incredible Concourse of People hither, to see the Inauguration of our University, which was perform'd as follows:

The Baron de Munichenhausen, Minister of State, and M. de Tappe, Director of the Consistory, arriving here two Days ago to assist at the Ceremony as Envoys from the King of Great Britain, our Elector, they were received out of the Town by the Militia of the District, and some of the Scholars on Horseback; under the Inner Gate by the Magistrates; and at the Quarters of the first Envoy by the University. And the Festival was proclaimed between 6 and 7 o'Clock that Evening by all the Bells in the City, and by the Flourishes of Trumpets and Kettle Drums, which was repeated again next Morning at three different Times.

The same Day, which was Yesterday, at half an Hour past 6 in the Morning, the respective Marshals of the following Corporations, and a little after them the Corporations themselves repaired to the Great Building of the Auditory of the University in this Order.

I. The Professors in ordinary in their Habits of Ceremony, the Doctors, Licentiates, Masters of Arts, Candidates and Servitors of the University in the Council-Chamber.

II. The Mayor, Burgo-Masters and Magistrates, dress'd in Black.

III. The Superintendent, and all the Ecclesiastical Ministry of the City in their ordinary Habit, in the Auditory of the Faculty of Medicine.

IV. The Scholars, as well of the University as Foreigners, in the Theological Oratory and in the Court.

The Procession began at 7 o'Clock in the following Order: The Masters of the Languages and the Exercises. The Scholars walking 4 a-Breast. The Ecclesiastical Ministry. The Magistrates. The Candidates that were to be promoted. The Masters of Arts and Assistants of Philosophy, with the Secretary of the Civil Law Faculty. The Licentiates and Doctors of all the Faculties, who have received their Degrees at this University: And lastly, the ordinary Professors, according to the Rank of their Faculties; each of these Bodies being preceded by two Marshals.

The Head of the Procession being arrived at the House of the Commandant, where the King's Envoys lodg'd, they halted for a while, till their Excellencies sent them Notice to march on.

The Deputies of the University of Helmstedt, preceded by two Marshals; those who carry'd the Arms, conducted by two Marshals; the Marshals of the Embassy, and after them the Envoys, the first in a Coach drawn by 6 Horses, and the second in a Coach and Pair; two Marshals of the Deputies of the States, and those Deputies in their Coaches, fell in here with the Procession, which was closed by the Coaches of those that assisted in it on Foot.

In the Choir of the Church of the University, a Floor was rais'd for the Envoys of the King, the Deputies of the States, and those of Helmstedt; as also for the Professors, the Magistrates, the Doctors, Licentiates and Masters of Arts. Here these Gentlemen rang'd themselves in such sort, that the Deputies were on the Right Hand of the Envoys, the Professors on the Left, and the Magistrates and Doctors behind. The other Bodies had also each their Places in the Choir, except the Scholars, who were rang'd in the Nave of the Church.

The Moment that the Envoys enter'd the Church the Musick struck up, and then follow'd Divine Service. During the Sermon, the Church was consecrated to the Use of the University, and when the Sermon, Prayer, and Blessing were concluded, the King's second Envoy began the Ceremony of the Inauguration, and in the King's Name nominated and invested the Chief Pro Rector or Vice Chancellor, and the Chief Deans of the Faculties. Then the new Vice Chancellor returned his Thanks, and Te Deum was sung, accompany'd by the Musick of the City, Bells, Trumpets and Kettle Drums.

The Envoys, the Deputies of the States, and those who had carried the Arms, return'd home without any Marshals or Ceremony; but the new Vice Chancellor was conducted to his Quarters with very great Pomp, by all the other Bodies and Marshals aforesaid.

At Noon there was a grand Entertainment at the Town-house, and in the Evening there was a Collocation in the Civil Law Auditory for the Scholars, who went afterwards to the Envoy's House, and regal'd their Excellencies with a Concert of Musick.

This Morning the Promotions were made with Solemnity in the University Church, which were follow'd according to Custom, with a great Dinner in the Grand Hall of the Town house.

And upon this and the following Days, the Professor of Rhetorick will pronounce a Panegyrick, and the other Professors will give Disputations, and other Academical Exercises.

L O N D O N.

Letters from the Havannah of the 13th of June mention, that the Kinfae Man of War was daily expected there to demand the Equivalent Money for the Ship Woolbull, taken by the Spaniards the Beginning of 1731, in her Passage from Jamaica to London, which has been deposited in the Hands of a Merchant of that City for some Time past, amounting to between 30 and 40,000 Pieces of Eight.

Capt. King of the Queen of Portugal, who is arrived in the River in 18 Days from Lisbon says, that an Aviso was arrived there some few Days before he left that Place, from Rio Janeiro, who brings an Account, that all was very quiet between the Spaniards and Portuguese in the River of Plate; that there were 4 Portuguese Men of War at the Rio de Janeiro, two of which were ordered to be Careened, in order to convoy the Fleet from that Place for Lisbon, which were to depart by the 20th of July last.

In our Paper of Thursday last, we mentioned the Loss of the Loyal Jane, Capt. Sabine Chandler, bound from Jamaica to London, which is confirm'd by Capt. Crawford of the Dawkins, who arrived the 22d Instant in the Downs from Jamaica, with these further Particulars; that she was lost the Day after she came out, on the Morant Keys, about 12 Leagues to the Eastward of Jamaica: The People were all saved, and also (twas expected) some Part of the Cargo, and the Ship's Materials.

Yesterday Morning about Two o'Clock a Fire broke out at Mr. William Kirby's, who kept the Three Tun Tavern, the Corner of Brewer's-street, by Golden Square; which burnt with such Fierceness, that in less than 3 Quarters of an Hour, the whole House was burnt to the Ground. The Watchman first alarmed Mr. Kirby of the Fire, who spoke to him thro' the Window, and then went and got his ancient Mother out of the Window in her Shift, and saved her Life; the Servants all got out with great Difficulty, but one of the Waiters was much burnt; and Mr. Kirby, who 'tis thought was endeavouring to secure some of his Effects, was unfortunately lost in the Flames: The Remains of his Body were afterwards taken out of the Rubbish, but burnt in a terrible Manner. 'Tis said there was some Gun-Powder in one of the Garrets, which blew up, and the upper Part of the House falling in, prevented its spreading: Only one other House was damaged. There is no particular Account how the Fire began. Mr. Kirby, who was a Widower, was to have been married some Time next Week.
